FARMER LITERALLY BLOWN TO PIECES

Dynamite in Pocket Ignited by Fuse and County Man is Instantly Killed. His Employer Possibly Fatally Hurt.

In a terrific explosion of dynamite near Abbottstown shortly before eleven o'clock this morning Amos Slothour, a Berwick township farmer, was instantly killed, his body literally being blown to pieces, while, Clair Stine, for whom he was working, was so seriously injured that he was rushed to a York hospital where little hope is entertained for his recovery.

Mr. Slothour resided about two miles east of Abbottstown and had gone to the Stine farm to assist in blasting out stumps and clearing some land. Mr. Stine is a young married man and several years ago purchased one of the Hollinger farms in Paradise township, York county, near the Adams county line.

The two men had been at work for several hours and had blown out a number of the stumps. Mr. Slothour carried a bucket containing some fuse and dynamite, and also had some of the material in his pocket. In setting off one of the blasts it is believed that the fuse became ignited and a moment after the next stump was blown up the dynamite in the unfortunate man's pocket exploded with a terrific report, blowing portions of his body in every direction. One foot was severed as clean as though it had been cut off. Bits of flesh were strewn all about and the man's death was instantaneous.

Mr. Stine was standing nearby at the time and he was thrown to the ground. A large opening was torn in his side by the bits of flying material and he sustained a compound fracture of one leg below the knee.

Physicians were summoned from Abbottstown but both doctors were attending to their professional duties elsewhere at the time and it was quite a while before one of them could be gotten to the scene. Dr. Hollinger finally arrived and he recommended Mr. Stine's immediate removal to a York hospital. Stanley Holliday, of Hanover, who was at the scene with an automobile at once tendered his services and a quick trip was made. Dr. Hollinger accompanying the suffering man to that institution. Mr. Stine is a young man and is married but has no children.

Mr. Slothour was about 48 years old and leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Slothour, living in Abbottstown, his wife, and nine children, Clair Slothour, living with Dr. Miller and attending school in Abbottstown; Mrs. Irene Bortner, of near Abbottstown, and the following at home, George, Alice, Roy, Margaret, Luella, Richard, and Bernice. He also leaves these sisters and brothers, Mrs. William Emlet, of near Abbottstown; Mrs. Alice Elder, living with her parents in Abbottstown; Mrs. D. R. Chronister, East Berlin; J. A. Slothour, of York; M. L. Slothour, Charles Slothour and Reuben Slothour, all residing on farms near Abbottstown.

The funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

YOUNG CONTRIBUTOR

County Boy to Have Article in Sunday Newspaper.

The magazine section of next Sunday's North American will contain in the "Romances of Pennsylvania History", "The First Station of the Underground", a story of local interest written by Myron R. Huff, a Sophomore at Gettysburg College.

WERE ALL THERE FIFTY YEARS AGO

Gettysburg Men were Right there when Lee Surrendered a Half Century ago. Members of Various Regiments are still Living here.

Memories of a half century ago will be recalled by a number of Gettysburg men to-morrow, the fiftieth anniversary of the surrender of General Robert E. Lee at Appomattox. Not a few of the "boys" from this place who enlisted in the Northern army at the time of the Civil War were present on that day, so long awaited by the Union army, and some of them are still living to recall the incidents of April 9, 1865.

Charles G. Rowan, of Buford street, enlisted at Philadelphia in the 119th Pennsylvania, and he was at Appomattox on the memorable day. Richard Ball, living near town, was there as a member of the 49th Pennsylvania.

Of the regiments recruited in this section, the 87th and 138th Pennsylvania were the only commands to be at Appomattox at the time of Lee's surrender. But few of the Gettysburg members of the latter command are now living, it is said, but a number of the men who fought with the 87th are here now among whom are the following, Theodore Frock, George Johns, George Schriver, James Reigle, John Weikert, Henry Weikert, and John Dubbs.

These men live either in Gettysburg or in the county and, although they have not planned any special reunion or gathering to celebrate the semi-centennial of Appomattox, they may be relied upon to tell their friends of their experiences at that place. One of them in telling what he saw said that he had never in his life witnessed such scenes of wild enthusiasm as when the news was brought to their quarters telling of the event which would in all probability mean the early end of the war.

Neither Corporal Skelly Post 9, G. A. R. or the local organization of the Sons of Veterans, will have any special exercises to-morrow but it will be greatly appreciated by them if business houses and private residences generally display the American flag.

IRON SPRINGS

Iron Springs—The following moved from Fairfield Station last week: Jacob Weaver, to near Gettysburg; William Heagy to Hunterstown; Frank Felix to the farm owned by Norman Musselman near Virginia Mills; and James Gladhill to near Charming.

John Hull moved from Gettysburg to the house made vacant by Frank Felix; Howard Bowling moved into the house made vacant by Jacob Weaver.

The Sunday School at the Furnace school house on Easter made the little folks very happy by giving each of them an egg.

Rev. Mr. Swingle has organized quite an interesting Sabbath school assisted by Miss Maude Reed, the superintendent.

Bert Gulden attended the funeral of his brother at York on last Monday.

John Reese moved from his farm to near Guldens Station. Robert Sanders, who lived on the farm known as the Cornelius Shiner place, moved to near Guldens Station.

Miss Alice Gifford Hummelbaugh, who taught school at Cold Springs, returned home on Monday.

Miss Lou Etta Sharets, who resides at Mt. Pleasant school house, spent Easter with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Sharets at Gettysburg.

At Cold Springs school, Hamilton township, those who attended every day during the seventh month were: Oscar Kline, Raymond Kauffman, Audrey Kepner, Crawford Kauffman, and Lorraine Kepner. Oscar Kline attended every day during the entire term. Gifford Hummelbaugh, teacher.

About fifty persons, who belong to the Union Sunday School at this place, attended the baptismal services at Fairfield in the Disciple church on Sunday evening conducted by Rev. Messrs. Frick and J. A. Swingle. The following members of the Sabbath School were immersed by Rev. Mr. Frick, pastor of the church, Elmer Carbaugh, Lottie Carbaugh, Jason Sifert, Edward Richardson, Hazel Richardson, and Susan Richardson. Rev. Mr. Swingle preached an interesting sermon to a large and attentive congregation.

MRS. LAWVER'S SUDDEN DEATH

Had been in Usual Health All Day. Doing Work about her Home. John Rummel and John Spangler Dead in Gettysburg.

MRS. RUFUS LAWVER

Mrs. Lydia Roth Lawver, wife of Rufus Lawver died suddenly at the home of her son, Emory Lawver, in Biglerville about half past nine o'clock Wednesday evening. She was aged 58 years, 9 months, and 8 days.

Mrs. Lawver had been in her usual health all day and had been busy about the house baking and ironing. She ate a hearty supper and about eight o'clock in the evening went to the home of her son not far distant. She showed no signs of illness until she was about to return when she sat down in a chair and it was at once seen that she was ill.

Her husband was summoned and her daughter, Mrs. C. H. Myers. Mr. Lawver had retired and did not reach her side before death occurred, which was in a few moments.

Mrs. Lawver was a life long resident of Biglerville and had a wide circle of friends in and about that town. She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Roth and leaves her husband and two children, Emory Lawver and Mrs. C. H. Myers, Biglerville. She also leaves these brothers and sisters, Reuben Roth, Mrs. Thomas Murray, George Roth, and John Roth, of Biglerville; Mrs. Sue B. Stevens, East Strasburg; and Mrs. Sarah Walter, Goodyear. She also leaves four grandchildren.

Mrs. Lawver was a life long member of the Lutheran church and her pastor, Rev. C. F. Floto, will conduct her funeral.

Funeral Saturday afternoon, meeting at the house at one o'clock. Services in the Lutheran church, Biglerville, and interment in the Biglerville cemetery.

Friends and relatives will kindly accept this as notice of the funeral.

JOHN A. RUMMEL

John A. Rummel died Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. O. G. Weaver, Stevens street, after more than a year's illness from paresis. He was aged 75 years and 14 days.

Mr. Rummel was born near Hampton, a son of Henry and Elizabeth (Wertz) Rummel. He lived there for a number of years, coming to Gettysburg about forty years ago and conducting a carpet weaving shop in the Wolf building on York street until ill health compelled his retirement. He had been confined to the house since December 1913 and to his room for the past eight months.

Mr. Rummel leaves three children, John Rummel, Baltimore; Mrs. J. O. G. Weaver and Miss Elizabeth Rummel, Gettysburg.

The funeral will be held from his late home Saturday afternoon at 1:30, Dr. T. J. Barkley, his pastor, officiating. Interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

JOHN SPANGLER

John Spangler, of New Oxford, died at nine o'clock Wednesday evening at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. A. Taughinbaugh, York street, where he had been visiting for the past two weeks. Death was caused by grip and complications. He was aged 69 years, 1 month, and 3 days.

He leaves two sons and one daughter, J. Frank Spangler, of New Oxford, with whom he made his home; Charles Spangler, New Oxford; and Mrs. W. A. Taughinbaugh, Gettysburg.

Mr. Spangler spent the greater portion of his life at New Chester, moving to New Oxford about two years ago. He was for almost twenty five years deacon and elder at the Reformed church, New Chester, of which he was a most earnest member.

The funeral will be held from the Taughinbaugh home at nine o'clock Saturday morning. Services and interment at the Reformed church, New Chester, Rev. W. E. Garrett officiating.

MRS. CORNELIUS SHUE

Mrs. Cornelius Shue died at ten o'clock Wednesday morning at her home in Abbottstown aged 65 years. She leaves her husband and four children, Mrs. Neal Medinger, Baltimore; Mrs. Amos Kuhn, Abbottstown; Captain P. G. Williams, Tangiers, Va.; and Rev. W. W. Williams.

WORK FOR COMMON SCHOOL DIPLOMAS

Sixty Boys and Girls will Take Test in Gettysburg Saturday which, if Passed, will Admit them to County High Schools.

In their efforts to obtain a common school diploma and admission to one or other of the county high schools sixty boys and girls from the various townships will come to Gettysburg next Saturday to take the final examinations. The centrals were held two weeks ago and 107 took the tests, forty seven failing to get the mark required—an average of 70 per cent with no branch below 50.

County Superintendent Roth announces a departure this year in his requirement of a common school diploma to allow admission to a high school. In other years an examination for high school admission was deemed sufficient but the "sheepskin" is now a necessity.

Saturday's tests, which will be held at the Gettysburg High School building, will be in charge of Prof. Roth, the grammar school teachers of the county, and several rural school teachers. The class will be composed of the following:

Berwick township: Estella Hale, Irene Rahn.

Butler township: Maude Steinour, Ward Taylor, Ivan Collins, Martin F. Walter, Raymond E. Shriver, Anne Belle Diehl, Sara E. Deardorff, Samuel Sadler.

Conecaw Independent District: Charles Gentzler, Heiner Hoover.

Conecaw township: Claire Krumrine, Leonard Becker, Lloyd Wilt, Sherman Wildasin, Frederick Rife.

Cumberland township: Wilbur Mehning, Dorothy Crouse, Marie King, Mary Rider.

Straban township: Glenwood Shetter, Ruth Sponseller, John Lawver, Martha Major, Donald Eckert, Ethel Hartlaub.

Mt. Joy township: John C. Rudisill, Rhoda Conover.

Franklin township: Ethel Dougherty, Paul Keller, Leslie Keller, Hilda Riggeal, Guy Bishop, Helen Kump, Hope Hartman, Orlando Shultz, Harold R. Lady.

Germany township: Eva Parr, Ethel Kump, Elsie Bish, Margaret Ulrich.

Harney: Charles M. A. Schildt, Guy Sterner.

Hamilton township: Evelyn Stock, Merrill Yohe, Horace Raffensperger.

Hamilton township: Allen Sloat, Allen Currens, Anna Young.

Liberty township: Esther Kipe.

Huntington township: Margaret Kennedy, Luke Pentz.

Latimore township: Mary Gardner, James Paxton, C. Russell Eurich, Estella Prosser.

FIERCE FIGHTING AROUND ST. MIHIEL

Heavy Losses Reported in Battle East of Verdun.

TO SEND VON HINDENBURG

Both Sides Are Rushing Up Reinforcements and Conflict Rages With Unabated Fury.

London, April 8.—Furious fighting between the French and Germans in the territory lying between the Meuse and the Lorraine frontier continues, with heavy losses.

Both sides are rushing up reinforcements toward St. Mihiel, the apex of the German wedge.

As a further indication that the threatening situation in the Champagne district is viewed with apprehension comes the report that Field Marshal von Hindenburg, the hero of Germany's great victory on the Marzian Lake region, has been ordered from the eastern to the western battle front.

The hottest fighting of the last forty-eight hours has been in the vicinity of Pont-a-Mousson, from which town the German lines extend westward to St. Mihiel. Here the struggle has been going on day and night, and despite the desperate character of the German defensive the French seem to have crept slowly forward.

The news clearly indicates the French objective, which is to cut off the German forces at St. Mihiel from their base at Metz with a quick movement north from Pont-a-Mousson to the St. Mihiel-Metz railroad, on which the Germans depend for their supplies.

The report of Von Hindenburg's transfer to the western theater of the war came to the Paris Temps in a heavily censored quotation from the Bundner Volksblatt, of Basle, Switzerland.

According to this information Von Hindenburg will not take up his activities at the western front until the beginning of the second week of April.

The Paris newspaper Echo de Paris states that the German crown prince after a mysterious absence from the front, has again taken command of the Third German army, lying north of Verdun and in the northern part of the Argonne.

MEXICANS IN COMBAT

Battle In Which 40,000 Men Face Each Other May Be Decisive.

Washington, April 8.—A battle with 40,000 troops engaged, which may be a deciding action in the strife between the Carranza and Villa factions in Mexico, is in progress or impending near Irapuato, in the state of Guanajuato.

State department dispatches dated April 5, sent by Special Agent Carothers, with General Villa, said the fight would take place soon. That was construed to mean that Villa had assembled a force strong enough to meet General Obregon's army, and was moving south from Torreón along the National railway.

DIGS UP A CAN OF MONEY

Nearly $5000 Found When Charles Virtz Razes Old Barn.

Hagerstown, Md., April 8.—Charles Virtz unearthed an old can containing between $4000 and $5000 while tearing down an old barn on his farm near here.

The can was hidden among the foundation stones. The greater part of the money was in bills. The barn had been used as a hospital during the Civil War, and it is believed that it might have been hidden at that time. Ten years ago Mr. Virtz found $1000 while removing the linoleum from the floor of his residence.

Jumps to Save Child's Life.

Pottsville, Pa., April 8.—With the shafts of his wagon broken and a spirited horse running wildly down a public street at St. Clair, Joseph Crosby, Jr., of St. Clair, seized two-year-old William Swain and jumped Crosby was rendered unconscious by the shock and both he and the child were picked up bleeding.

Suffrage Is Defeated in Connecticut
Hartford, Conn., April 8.—A proposed constitutional amendment giving women the right of suffrage was rejected by the Connecticut house of representatives, 124 to 106. This action ends the movement for equal suffrage so far as the present general assembly is concerned.

Old Racing Histrory Burns.
Long Branch, N. J., April 8.—The old Monmouth Park hotel, famous in the days when horse racing flourished in this state, was burned to the ground. The hotel was located close to the Monmouth Park race track.

ITALIAN FLEET NEAR ADRIATIC

Concentration of Warships Creates Impression.

On the Italian Frontier, April 8, via Paris.—The warships of the Italian fleet departed suddenly on Monday from the Mediterranean naval stations at Spezia, Gaeta and Maddalena Islands.

They concentrated at Augusta, Sicily, and at Taranto. They are there within a few hours steaming of the Adriatic.

The departure of these warships caused a profound impression, particularly at Spezia, where until last Sunday the harbor was crowded with the dreadnoughts, cruisers and torpedo boat destroyers, while the town was filled with officers and sailors.

Italy now has the finest fleet in her history. It is headed by several dreadnoughts, of which the most formidable is the Conte di Cavour, which corresponds in the Italian navy to Great Britain's Queen Elizabeth.

The future movements of the fleet are veiled with absolute secrecy. It is asserted that only the king and one or two of the highest government officials are acquainted with the plans decided upon.

HER BODY NO ASSET

Referee Voids Agreement Young Woman Made With Pawnbroker.

Des Moines, Ia., April 8.—The body of Miss Dollie Morgan, of Denver, after her death would be of no value and should not be considered as an asset or a liability in the settlement of the business of Mose Levich, bankrupt, says H. H. Whitaker, referee in bankruptcy, who gave a decision.

This is the answer to a question of Levich asking whether the bill of sale he holds over Miss Morgan's body after her death should be considered in the settlement of his affairs.

Levich came into possession of the bill of sale in January, 1917, when the young woman entered his pawnshop and as security for a loan of $10 gave him the right to her body after her death.

VATICAN MAKES DENIAL

Report That Observatory Sends Wireless Messages Pronounced Untrue.

Rome, April 8.—Official denial of the report printed in Rome newspapers that the Vatican observatory is sending wireless messages is published by the Osservatore Romano, the organ of the Vatican.

The director of the observatory asserts that the Vatican does not possess apparatus either for sending or receiving wireless messages.

The Kaiser Honors Gen. von Kluk.

SENATE PASSES ELECTION BILLS

All Go Through Except Non-Partisan Repealer.

TO TAX BUILDING SOCIETIES

Senate Measure Puts Levy on Assets and House Bill Proposes Bureau of Supervision.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 8.—The election bills introduced by Senator McNichol, of Philadelphia, which are designed among other things to prevent fusion after primary elections, were passed finally in the senate without debate. They were sent to the house.

The bills passed are:

Prohibiting withdrawal of nominees after the primary elections. The vote on this bill was 34 to 8.

Providing that witnesses summoned before the registration boards shall be paid witnesses' fees at the time they are subpoenaed. Vote, 29 to 5.

Setting back the first registration day to September in odd-numbered years. Vote, 43 to 2.

Prohibiting nominations by nominating papers after the primaries are held. Vote, 35 to 4.

Providing that where two candidates have similar names the county commissioners may place their occupation on the ballot next to the names of the candidates. Vote, 42 to 2.

Striking out of the election laws the provision which permits voters to indicate their presidential preference at primaries in presidential years and providing for the rejection of nomination papers where signatures are not found genuine as to membership in parties. Vote, 33 to 8.

Required proposed new political parties to be organized before the primary elections. The bill also increases the percentage of signatures required on petitions for the organization of such parties. Vote, 37 to 3.

The bills to repeal the non-partisan election laws were recommitted to the election committee for a hearing.

The Cox child labor bill passed the house by a vote of 179 to 6, and was sent to the senate. No effort was made to amend the measure, which has Governor Brumbaugh's endorsement, but it is believed that it will be changed materially in the senate.

Establishment of a bureau to supervise the 1750 building and loan associations of the state is proposed in a bill introduced in the house by Mr. Swartz, of Dauphin. It would also have authority over all foreign associations doing business in Pennsylvania. The superintendent of the bureau is to be appointed by the secretary of internal affairs, of whose department the bureau is to be a branch. The superintendent is to be paid $4500 and to have a deputy and clerks.

In the senate Senator Smith, of Philadelphia, introduced a bill providing that all building and loan associations must pay a yearly tax of two cents for each $100 of assets in force on Dec. 31. The minimum tax to be paid by any association shall be $10.

WOMEN TO WATCH POLLS

Senate Bill Proposes Privilege During November Balloting on Suffrage.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 8.—Provision to have women watchers at the polls next November, when the voters will pass on the suffrage amendment, is made in a bill introduced by Senator Vore.

The bill was introduced at the instance of the Pennsylvania Woman Suffrage association through the efforts of Mrs. Frank M. Roessing, its president.

The bill provides that each county chairman of the state body advocating adoption of the amendment shall be entitled to appoint two watchers in each election district, and each county chairman of the organization opposing the amendment shall be entitled to appoint two watchers. The watchers may be qualified electors or adult women residents of the district.

Stabs Man to Death.

Palmerton, Pa., April 8.—Seated at the table eating his supper, Fedor Taly, aged thirty years, was stabbed to death by Louis Kehert, twenty-five years old. So amazed were the other persons around the table that they forgot to capture Kehert. He was caught a few minutes later.

Strike Stops Canal Boats.

Bethlehem, Pa., April 8.—Navigation on the Lehigh canal between Mauch Chunk, Bethlehem, Easton and Philadelphia, which started last week is tied up by a strike of boatmen who demand 53 cents instead of 41 cents per ton for conveying coal from the mines to tidewater.

Murders Woman in Sight of Children

Peoria, Ill., April 8.—Peoria police are seeking an unidentified colored man who murdered Mrs. William H. Schriever here after attempting to assault her. The man cut the woman's throat and escaped. The crime was witnessed by her four small children.

N. Y. Widows' Pension Bill Signed

Albany, N. Y., April 8.—The bill to provide pensions for needy widowed mothers was signed by Governor Whitman.

PREDICTS BIG WHEAT CROP

Government Estimates 619,000,000 Bushels on Condition April 1.

Washington, April 8.—Prospects of the winter wheat crop, planted last fall on the greatest acreage in the history of the country, were that 619,000,000 bushels would be produced.

This estimate by the department of agriculture, based on the condition of the growing crop on April 1, may be increased or decreased according to the changes in condition from that date to time of harvest.

Winter wheat condition on April 1 was 88.8 per cent of a normal, against 95.6 last year and 87.6, the ten-year average. There was an increase of 5 points from last December, compared with an average decline of 2.7 points in the past ten years.

Rye condition was 89.5 per cent of a normal, against 91.3 last year and 90.1, the ten-year average.

RICH COAL VEIN STRUCK

Deposit 26 Feet Deep Found as Working Was to Be Abandoned.

Hazleton, Pa., April 8.—Miners engaged in driving a rock tunnel at the Drifton colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal company struck a twenty-six-foot vein of anthracite coal in a portion of the workings which were on the verge of abandonment.

The discovery means a long lease of life to the mine, which has been in steady operation since 1863.

HALF OF ILLINOIS IN DRY COLUMN

55 Out of 102 Counties Vote to Abolish Liquor.

Chicago, April 8.—Fifty-five out of the 102 counties in Illinois abolished liquor in Tuesday's election, an increase of three.

The new counties lining up against rum are Marion, Franklin and Asper. Of 350 saloons in forty-five involved townships a hundred were voted out of business, among them all those in Centuria, which has been in the "wet" column for sixty years. Thirty-eight saloons were abolished there.

In Chicago, William Hale Thompson, Republican, was elected mayor by the largest plurality—138,891—ever accorded a candidate for that office.

Superior, Wis., Goes Dry.

Superior, Wis., April 8.—Superior, the second city in Wisconsin, switched suddenly from the "wet" to the "dry" column when an error was discovered in taking the count from a voting machine. The corrected returns show a majority of fifty-one for no license. Forty-one towns which were dry voted to remain so, and sixty-five voted to retain saloons. Nineteen cities and towns which were formerly wet were swung into the dry column, while only four villages which were dry went over to the wet column.

WEDS SIXTH HUSBAND

Woman, 58, Marries Husband, 60, in Scranton.

Scranton, Pa., April 8.—Elizabeth F. Snyder, married five times before and aged fifty-eight, and John J. Paff, aged sixty, were granted a marriage license.

Shortly after they had left the office James Griffin, aged seventy-four, and Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, aged sixty-five years, applied for a marriage license.

The combined aged of the four is 257 years. The marriages were performed Wednesday night. Griffin is a member of the Griffin family which at one time owned all the land which is now North Scranton.

Girl Burned to Death.

Locust Gap, Pa., April 8.—Mary Glessner, six years old, was burned to death while her mother, Mrs. John Glessner, and her son, James, were badly injured jumping from a second story window to the ground here. Other members of the family were dropped from burning second-story windows to safety.

No Success in Raising Sunken F-4.

Washington, April 8.—Admiral Moore, in charge of the work of locating and raising the lost submarine F-4 at Honolulu, reported to the navy department that no results had been met with thus far, although the rescue force was working overtime.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S DEATH

Fiftieth Anniversary of the Tragedy of 1865

APRIL 15, 1865

APRIL 15, 1915

The Shooting at Ford's Theater. Death Chamber and Catafalque.

By G. LUTHER LANDON.

(Copyright, 1915, by American Press Association.)

It was a bright night at Ford's theater on April 14, 1865. The large audience had been led to expect that President Lincoln and General Grant would occupy the president's box.

Civilian Washington barely knew Grant by sight, and as the Appomattox furor had not subsided the house filled early. Although the gayly decorated box of the president was empty when the hour arrived, the curtain went up and the play began, its bewitching humor making people forget that the Hamlet or Hamlets of the occasion had not arrived.

About 8:30 there was an interruption to receive the president. He was accompanied by Mrs. Lincoln, Major Rathbone of the army and the daughter of Senator Ira Harris. Grant's absence from the party was not explained to the audience, and many took it for granted that he would appear later. The best of feeling prevailed before and behind the footlights, and the play, "Our American Cousin," proceeded happily well into the third act. A young actor, Harry Hawke, having the role of Asa Trenchard, was on the stage alone, holding the attention of the audience while awaiting the next "entrance."

Although absorbed in his difficult part, Hawke was probably the best witness present to note the vital scene in the tragedy which was now rudely superimposed upon the thread of a drama anything but somber or gruesome. He faced the audience and was engaged in a monologue when he heard a shot behind the box which more than any other was in everybody's mind that night. Eager watchers of the entrance of that box for a glimpse of Grant had seen late in the evening a pale, thin, arctic type of man, for those days, pass in the usual way behind the dress circle seats and approach the box. This was not the hero of Appomattox, so no one gave him attention better bestowed, they thought, upon the fictitious personages on the boards.

Pistol and Dagger and Blood.

The stranger passed through and closed the door leading to a passage behind the president's box and was lost to all conscious sight until Hawke turned at the sound of the shot and saw a man push through the group with Lincoln, make his way with a blood stained knife in his hand, to the balcony, pause and exclaim dramatically, "See, seamen tyrants!" Letting himself down to the stage by a fire-trail around the box, he felt, but soon regained his feet, took the center of the stage and, brandishing the knife, shouted, "Liberty for the south" or "The south is avenged!" Hawke said that the intruder strode straight at him, that he supposed he was a madman and meant to do him harm, that he did not know the president was the target for the mysterious shot, that it all occurred in a few seconds and he (Hawke) instantly fled to the wings.

Minor details have been added to Hawke's story—for instance, that the pistol was held over Mrs. Lincoln's shoulder, that her sharp cry followed the shot, that Major Rathbone struggled with the intruder and was cut by the dagger, and so on. But Hawke's story remains as that of the only one who could be called a looker-on from the front, and he saw and was a part of what the transfixed audience saw as the climax of that horrible night's work.

Some in the audience said to themselves, as breath and consciousness returned after the stupefying scene, "John Wilkes Booth, John Wilkes Booth!" Supercilious glances everywhere except in that box and behind the scenes. Miss Harris darted out over the rail for water and stimulants, adding, "The president has been shot!" The stage people were in a panic. No body did the right thing except Mrs. Harris and Major Rathbone. Rathbone rushed through a door that the assassin had barred behind him, pressed back the crowd which moved spasmodically in that direction and sent for surgeons.

Unfortunately the bullet had made a wound which baffled surgical skill.

Uncle Eben.

"Dey say dat you can't git sumpin' foh nuffin," said Uncle Eben. "But de gemman dat done collect de taxes wifout makin' no improvements shows me dat it kin be done."

Entering near the base of the back stair, it had been checked by the house and lodged in the heart. The wound bled profusely, and the bleeding was not helped by the president's removal in crude fashion—the arms of two men—to a house across the street from the theater. The president lapsed into insensibility when shot and so remained.

Lincoln Dead in Nine Hours.

During the small hours the bedside of the dying president was surrounded by members of the cabinet and other officials, a few close personal friends and his family. Mrs. Lincoln was overcome with emotion. Secretary Stanton hovered over the president's pillow, and the venerable Secretary Welles of the navy and Senator Sumner of Massachusetts stood on opposite sides of the couch, with an army group, including the son, Captain Robert Lincoln, disposed about the room.

No hope was held out by the surgeons, and their reports throughout the night led the public to believe that death must ensue. Other alarms distracted attention—the secretary of state had been attacked in his bed, and it was rumored that Grant had been killed. All in all the Washington dispatches that appeared in the morning papers of the country on the 15th indicated a conspiracy of which the president was the chief victim. That the evil would stop there few could believe.

Toward midday the people of cities with telegraph connections knew that Lincoln had expired about 7:29 in the morning. Having alternated for hours between the baseless hope that the president would live and the natural fear that the assassination was part of a colossal plot to undo the work of the war, the public mind, to a large degree, bordered on hysteria.

Just as the more susceptible of the excited ones at Ford's theater when they realized the foulness of the deed before them had rushed toward the stage where the assassin was last seen, crying, "Kill him!" "Hang him!" so thousands throughout the land clinched their hands and grated their teeth in uncontrollable rage when the word was known. But for those thousands there were tens and hundreds of thousands who accepted the calamity as one more sacrifice on the altar of the nation's good, one to be felt deeply and borne heroically.

Extended Funeral Obsequies.

These last were they who for three weeks with somber bearing awaited along the route chosen for the memorial journey the hour when all that remained of the mortal Lincoln—the martyred Lincoln—would pass and be gone forever. The funeral was held in Washington on Wednesday, the 19th, and that day throughout the whole land, in camp and metropolis, in city and town and village, millions and millions participated in solemn rites.

Then followed the great processions in Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Albany, Buffalo, Cleveland and all along the route to Springfield, where the burial took place on May 4. On the train the coffin was borne in a magnificent funeral car and in the cities moved in the processions on a stately catafalque. In every city the remains lay in state a few hours, and night and day the people gathered to pay one more tribute to the dead, often facing pouring rain in the street to view the catafalque, or while waiting for access to the crowded hall where the coffin lay. And the stations and bridges and buildings, public and private, made one continuous pall. Archways were erected and wreathed in crape and evergreens and flags. Meanwhile the wretched assassin, John Wilkes Booth, a crippled fugitive, was hunted down and shot to death in a wayside Virginia stable.

Lincoln In History.

The burial was at Oak Ridge cemetery, Springfield. There the remains rested without a suitable memorial until the monument designed by Larkin C. Mead was dedicated, in 1874. It may be said truly that during the years between 1865 and 1874 Lincoln was lost to the public mind. Millions revered his memory; his portrait adorned the walls of mansion and cabin; life stories written by personal friends, partners and political colleagues were well thumbed. The masses didn't forget him, but his public work was part history, or so it then seemed.

Even before Lincoln was laid in his tomb the nation was plunged afresh into the turmoil of war and war alarms. General Sherman was virtually accused of treason in the matter of making terms with the Confederates for the surrender of Johnston's large army. Grant was sent to the front to relieve Sherman. The fleeing Confederate government was being pursued for fear a new stand would be made in the mountains or beyond the Mississippi. Andrew Johnson stepped into Lincoln's shoes and was instantly at odds with his cabinet and colleagues. Grant was "the man of the hour," upon whom the public relied to restore order, but even Grant was checked by red tape and a voiced jealousy and hostility which often tied his hands.

The ink was barely dry upon Lee's treaty of surrender when Sheridan was ordered to gather his forces and proceed to the Mexican border and prepare for a new war with the forces of Maximilian. For three years following the end of the Confederacy and the death of Lincoln anxiety and misgivings ruled the nation, not to be dissipated until the election of Grant, "the man on horseback," to the White House in 1868. Grant's sword took the place of Lincoln's wisdom and honesty as the guarantee of national life and safety. Never was the saying "The king is dead; long live the king" more applicable than in the United States in 1865. Grant was the new king, though unanointed and unenthroned. The verdict upon Lincoln was that he had wrought honestly and nobly, but time alone could determine the enduring value of his labor. Not until the twenty-fifth anniversary of his death was there a national movement to commemorate his life work by celebrating his birthday.

Lincoln's Closing Days.

The last six months of Lincoln's career in the executive chair were notably eventful. In November, 1864, he was re-elected upon his record as war president of three and a half years. His reelection had not been a foregone conclusion. Such was the demand for a military man that General Grant had been impelled to declare that he would not be a candidate. General McClellan ran on an anti-war platform, and, although his electoral vote was light, he drew a surprising popular vote.

That the people of the north were tired of the war was evident in spite of Lincoln's triumph at the polls on a ringing war platform. In order to prove his desire for peace he yielded to the pressure of the hour and met Vice President Stephens of the Confederate states at Fortress Monroe, in February, 1865, to arrange the preliminaries of negotiations. His firm avowal that the basis of such negotiations must be the submission of the south ended the conference, and from that time on the problem of conquering peace and restoring the relations of the sections absorbed his heart and mind. His thought, his hope, his conviction were epitomized in that marvelous inaugural address of March 4, when he surpassed not only himself, but all the classics of American political eloquence. "One specimen suffices to stamp its tone and power:

"With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right, as God gives us to see the right, let us strive on to finish the work we are in, to bind up the nation's wounds, to care for him who has borne the battle and for his widow and his orphan—to do all which may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations."

While in Richmond after the fall Mr. Lincoln said that he believed that the conquered people would be "let up easy." This was in accordance with views expressed to Grant after he had met Confederate peace commissioners. Grant states in his memoirs that at that time Mr. Lincoln said that if the southerners would agree to perpetual union and the abolition of slavery he would be willing to hand them a blank sheet of paper with his signature attached and let them state the terms themselves. These views, known to the Federal generals in the field, influenced them in their stipulations for the surrender of the Confederate armies.

CATARH GERMS

EASILY KILLED

By Breathing into Throat, Nose and Lungs a Pure Antiseptic Air.

If you have catarrh and want to get rid of it you must kill the germs which cause the disease.

The best known way of destroying Catarrh germs is to breathe into the air passages of your nose and throat and lungs the pleasant, penetrating air of Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me). Hyomei is made from purest oil of Eucalyptus combined with other powerful, healing, antiseptic and germicidal ingredients. You breathe it through a little pocket inhaler which The People's Drug Store and other leading druggists in Gettysburg and vicinity are furnishing with every complete treatment sold. Every time you inhale the sweet, fragrant air of Hyomei through this little device you are drawing into your swollen, inflamed, germ laden membranes a medicated air which will not only reduce all the swelling and inflammation and open your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages, but will absolutely and positively destroy every trace of Catarrh germ life it reaches. Druggists are so sure of the blessed, lasting relief that Hyomei brings to catarrh sufferers that they sell it unvarnished on the positive guarantee that money paid will be refunded if successful results are not secured from its use.

GREAT CAREER OF LORD ROTHSCHILD

Astonishing Speculation Formed Basis of Wonderful Fortunes.

FORBEAR SAW INTO FUTURE.

Death of Croesus Baron Recalls Origin of Family, Its Curious and Apparently Harmless Inter-marriages and Its Spread to the Control of the Financial Capitals of Europe.

Baron Nathan Mayer Rothschild, head of the English branch of the great banking family and titular head of all the Rothschild connection, who died at his home in London, was the first Rothschild to be raised to the peerage of Great Britain.

His death recalls naturally the origin of the family, its astonishing speculations, its curious and apparently harmless inter-marriages, its spread to the control of the financial capitals of Europe and its rise socially. The first of the Rothschilds was Mayer Amschel, called Rothschild, who lived in the ghetto at Frankfurt-on-the-Main. As he lay dying he called his five sons to his bedside and commanded them to be loyal to the faith of Moses, to remain united to the end, to intermarry and to obey their mother in all things.

The wise old man, who had already made his hand felt in the bourses and chancelleries of Europe, parceled out the continent as a conqueror divides subjugated territory. To London he sent Nathan Mayer, grandfather of the Lord Rothschild who died in his Piccadilly mansion. To Vienna went Solomon. Charles was directed to Naples to found the Italian branch of the family, while Jacob James Mayer, one of the great Rothschilds, the railroad builder of France, became the head of the Paris house. There were five daughters also.

Get Exclusive News Early.

Perhaps the first of the English Rothschilds, Nathan Mayer, was the greatest financial genius of the family. His greatest achievements were based on getting exclusive news earlier than anybody else. To get such rapid advance information he established a service of carrier pigeons. The world is familiar with his achievement at the time of the battle of Waterloo. He was in Paris when he received private information that Napoleon had been defeated. He drove in hot haste to the battlefield, verified the story, reached England and London in incredible time for such days, employed agents to buy up government consols and such stocks as were certain to advance with the news of British triumph and made as a result a vast fortune. He lived like a prince and entertained royally. He had a superstition that bad luck was contagious, and he would have nothing to do with unsuccessful persons. He left a fortune of £18,000,000 ($30,000,000).

He was succeeded by his son Lionel, who bore an Austrian title of baron. He did much toward advancing the prestige of the house. He arranged immense foreign loans, helping among other things to fund the debt of the United States government after the civil war, advancing £4,000,000 to the British government to purchase the Khedive Ismail's canal shares in 1875 and after the Franco-Prussian war heading the syndicate of bankers who agreed to maintain the integrity of foreign exchange, thus facilitating the payment of France's huge indemnity.

He was the first Jew to be elected to parliament, an honor which he obtained in 1847, but it was not until 1858 that the law was so amended that he could take his seat by giving oath on the Old Testament alone, as he had persistently insisted upon doing. Upon his death in 1879 the headship of the Rothschilds fell to the late Lord Nathan Mayer, who in 1876 had inherited the baronetcy of his uncle, Sir Anthony, and who was himself raised to the peerage in 1885. Lord Nathan was widely known for his great wealth and his philanthropic labors. His town house in Piccadilly as well as his great country seat at Tring Park, Herts, was famous for brilliant gatherings of persons socially prominent. He was educated in England and in 1867 married Emma Louisa, daughter of Baron Mayer Carl de Rothschild of Frankfurt-on-the-Main.

Inter-marriages All Right.

It is one of the most extraordinary facts about the Rothschild family that there could have been so many inter-marriages without a weakening of the virility and a dulling of the genius of the race. Baron James, head of the Paris branch for many years, married his niece, Baron Lionel of London married his first cousin, Alphonse, the successor of Baron James, married Evelyn, daughter of Bryan Lionel.

Lord Rothschild is survived by Lady Rothschild and their three children—the Hon. Lionel Walter, heir to the barony; the Hon. Charlotte Louisa Adela Evelyn, who is married to Captain Olive B. Behrens of the Royal Artillery, and the Hon. Nathan Charles. It is the latter who will succeed, it is supposed, to the active headship of the financial affairs of the English house, since the new Baron Lionel is not a business man in any sense, but is noted for scientific attainments, particularly in zoology.

COUNTLESS SZECZENYI INVENTS WAR GAME.

Countless Szeczenyi, who was Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, and Countess Sigray, daughter of the late Marcus Daly, have invented a popular war game for Budapest. It arose from an argument between the two, as each has a pet theory as to when the war will end. The game consists of writing forecasts of the date of the close of the struggle, sealing them in envelopes and filing them to be read after peace is declared. A growing number of people, lured by the chance of saying, "I told you so," are canning their own opinions with red wax and ceremony.

LAST HOUR SCENES AT FALL OF PRZEMYSL.

Austrians, Surrendering, Kissed Rifles Before Breaking Them Up.

A dispatch to the London Morning Post from "Budapest" gives a story of the last hours preceding the surrender of Przemyśl to the Russians as related by one of two aviators who left the city shortly before its fall.

"Four of us left in two remaining aeroplanes at the time when Russian shells began to fall on the hangars," he said. "At this stage the garrison was engaged in destroying guns and interior fortifications.

"The artillerymen were not satisfied with knocking to pieces the breeches of the great guns and siege mortars, but explosives were placed in the rear part of each gun, and it was blown into fragments. The famous 20.5 centimeter mortars were destroyed in this way, their enormous steel tubes being torn into pieces.

"As to the many thousands of rifles, it was ordered that every man was to destroy his own, and it was a pitiful sight to see them do it. Some of the men kissed their rifles first and wept while hammering them to bits. They had to accept this mode of destroying them, for as they were firing almost to the last there would have been no time to gather the rifles and burn them in one pile.

"During the siege," the aviator went on, "we lost twelve aeroplanes and seven pilots. Seven officers who accompanied them as observers were shot down. We do not know if they were killed or taken prisoners. On the morning of the fall of the fortress shrapnel began to fall, and we had to leave if we wanted to save the aeroplanes and ourselves from falling into the enemy's hands. The scene was indescribably terrible below. When I entered the fortress before leaving the smoke and flames of exploding ammunition stores shot up to the clouds. The military buildings and storehouses were in flames, and incessant thundering shook my machine as explosions took place below."

SECRET OF SUBMARINE WAR.

Admiral Buchard of France Says Trawlers Tow the Raiders.

Rear Admiral Henri Buchard of the French navy, who retired from service through ill health just before the war, arrived on the steamship Chicago from Bordeaux to make a tour of the United States. In an interview he scouted the idea of the German navy having submarines that could steam eighteen knots on the surface and their threats to destroy the French and English commerce on the high seas.

"When the war commenced," he said, "the Germans had about thirty-seven submarines. With those which have recently been constructed and subtracting those that have been destroyed, they may have forty-five in use at the present time.

"The reason these submarines have been able to go as far as Cape Finisterre is because they are towed by steam or motor fishing trawlers down the channel. The trawlers are sighted and signaled by cruisers and destroyers belonging to the allies, but the officers do not suspect that the line astern is attached to a submarine instead of a big fishing net. This is a grave question that will have to be seriously taken up by the French and British officials in order to stop the submarine raids.

"The Germans have bases for their submarines at Antwerp, Bruges and also one off the coast of Norway, near Bergen. The newest boats they have constructed at Antwerp cannot average more than fourteen knots on the surface and nine to ten knots under water.

The admiral said that France had about ninety submarines and the English navy 110 or more, but they could not use them because the Germans had no ships about to be attacked.

Admiral Buchard was naval attaché at Berlin for five years.

MET DEATH SAVING A CAT.

Rich Man Falls Through Skylight With Animal In His Arms.

Lemuel T. Rathell, a wealthy oyster dealer, died from injuries received in rescuing a kitten from the ridge of a glass skylight above his office along the Delaware river front. Rathell climbed onto the roof to get the cat and was bringing it back in his arms when he crashed through the skylight and fell thirty feet.

The dead man was well known for his many kind acts to needy persons along the Philadelphia river front. He was fifty-five years old.

Don't Wait for the Fatal Stages of Kidney Illness. Profit By Gettysburg People's Experiences.

Occasional attacks of backache, irregular urination, headaches and dizzy spells are frequent symptoms of kidney disorders. It is an error to neglect these ills. The attacks may pass off for a time but generally return with greater intensity. Don't delay a minute. Begin taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and keep up their use until the desired results are obtained. Good work in Gettysburg proves the effectiveness of this great kidney remedy.

Mrs. N. L. Wireman, 135 York St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I suffered a great deal from backache and I often had nervous spells. When Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention, I procured a supply at the People's Drug Store and commenced their use. The backache was relieved and my entire system was benefited. I gladly recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and advise other kidney sufferers to give them a trial."

Cold Feet Cause Broken Sleep. A common cause for restlessness at night is found in cold feet, and these should be especially guarded against with children who are prone to suffer in this way. Hot water bottles, carefully covered with felt so that there is no risk of burning the sensitive skin, should be resorted to when any tendency to cold feet exists, and in cases of chilly babies generally, cold is extremely bad for little children, and much broken sleep is due simply to it.

PUT CREAM IN NOSE AND STOP CATARRH

Tells How To Open Clogged Nostrils and End Head-Colds.

You feel fine in a few moments. Your cold in head or catarrh will be gone. Your clogged nostrils will open. The air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more dullness, headache, no hawking, snuffling, mucous discharges or dryness; no struggling for breath at night.

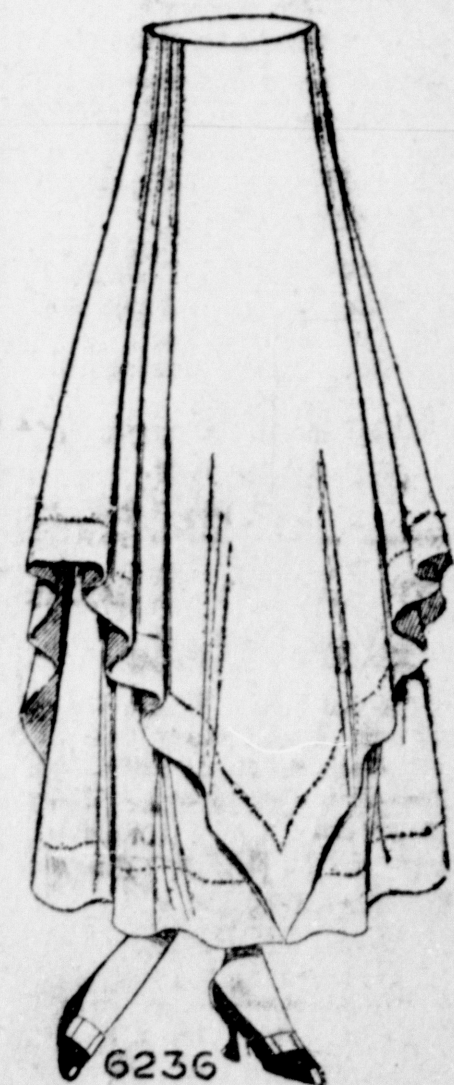

Tell your druggist you want a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic cream in your nostrils, let it penetrate through every air passage of the head; soothe and heal the swollen, inflamed mucous membrane, and relief comes instantly.

It is just what every cold and catarrh sufferer needs. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable.

FLADEN SOUP.

LUNCHEON MENU.

Fladen Soup. Fried Oysters. Mashed Parsnips. Cream Cheese and Nut Salad. Floating Island. Coffee.

AN unusual soup, which is sure to meet with approval, is fladen soup.

Into four well beaten eggs stir eight heaping tablespoonfuls of flour, beating till smooth. Stir in enough sweet milk for very thin batter. Put one tablespoonful at a time into a hot frying pan slightly greased with butter, spreading the batter evenly over the surface by tipping it about. Fry to a light brown and turn pancake. When done roll up and place in soup tureen. The fire must be hot and the baking done swiftly. There should be no hard crust. Stew the chicken or soup bone till done and pour the broth over the pancakes after slicing them. Salt the soup, not the pancakes. Serve hot.

Fried Oysters.

Select largest and best oysters. Rinse quickly with cold water and drain. Pat gently with a soft napkin until dry. Beat two eggs until light, add tablespoonful boiling water, season with salt, pepper and dash of tabasco. With a steel fork caught into the eye of the oyster dip in egg mixture, then in cracker dust; repeat. Fry in deep, hot fat until brown.

Cream Cheese and Nuts.

A small cream or Neufchatel cheese, two large tablespoonfuls of chopped walnuts. Moisten the cheese with cream or milk, season with salt and pepper, mix nuts through it. Place a mound of this on lettuce leaves moistened with French dressing.

Floating Island.

This is an old fashioned dessert that deserves attention. To make it, cook the beaten whites of four eggs in spoonfuls in a quart of scalding milk in a double boiler. Drain the whites in a wire sieve when they are cooked and return the milk that drains away from them to the double boiler. Beat the yolks of four eggs with two or three tablespoonfuls of sugar and a tablespoonful of vanilla and add to the milk. Stir until the custard is thick and smooth. Then pour it into a dish and chill and serve with the cooked whites on top.

Citizenship.

Loyalty no longer consists in meeting the ordinary responsibilities in citizenship, or even in manifesting willingness to surrender life in a time of peril. Citizenship has, like all life itself, become exceedingly complex; and the man can be the right kind of citizen only as he realizes that every thought and every act of his life must bear a conscious relation to society and to the well-being of the people.

Have Dark Hair

and Look Young

Nobody can Tell when you Darken Gray, Faded Hair with Sage Tea

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

THE PRINZ EITEL

TO TIE UP AT NAVY YARD

Washington Authorities Decide That Cruiser Shall Be Taken to Norfolk
Until End of War.

Newport News, Va., April 8.—Commander Thierichens, of the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich, informed the collector of customs at Newport News that he desired to intern his ship in American waters for the war.

The commander said he had been obliged to determine upon this course because relief, which would have made possible a dash for the sea, had failed to arrive.

Commander Thierichens sent the following communication to Collector
Hamilton:

"To Collector of Customs—Sir: I inform you I intend to intern H. M.
S. Prinz Eitel Friedrich. The relief expected to appear not arrived in time, so the number and force of the enemy cruisers watching the entrance of the bay makes it impossible the dash for the open sea with any hope for success. I have decided not to deliver crew and ship to this fruitless and certain destruction. Being obliged for the courtesies shown by all United States authorities, I am expecting your orders. I have sent the same information to Rear Admiral Helm, U. S.
S. Alabama."

The collector immediately notified the treasury department at Washington and later went into a conference with the naval authorities as to the procedure.

Later word came from Washington that the navy department had decided that the Eitel should be taken to the Norfolk navy yard for internment, and her officers and crew bound not to participate further in the war.

The action of the German captain in interning the Eitel fulfilled the expectations which treasury department officials have held since their first examination of the ship on her appearance in Hampton Roads three weeks ago.

Officials had believed all along that because of the condition of the engines of the Eitel, as well as because of the strict guard being kept by the three English and French warships outside the capes the German government would decide to intern the ship
for the war.

NEW GERMAN ARMY
CHECKS RUSSIANS

Tide of Carpathian Battle Swings to the Austrians.

London, April 8.—German troops have come up to buttress the imperiled Austrian line in the Beskid mountains, south of the Dukla and Lupkow passes, where the Russian troops have recently appeared to be driving all before them.

With their arrival the Russians appear to have been checked, and for the moment at least the balance in the long battle line in the Carpathians seems to be swaying to the Austrian side.

This newest and vital development in the eastern situation is announced officially in the statement of the war office in Vienna:

"Fighting in the Carpathians is developing. Austrian and German troops took strong Russian positions on the heights east of Laboreza valley, capturing 5040 prisoners. In adjoining districts several strong Russian attacks were repulsed, with severe loss to the enemy, including 2530 prisoners."

The Russian masses, reinforced by the besiegers of Przemyśl, who have within the past week surmounted the Dukla and Lupkow passes and begun moving down the parallel valleys of the Beskid region toward the plains of Hungary, not only have met with a barrier of fresh German troops, but according to Petrograd dispatches the Austrian offensive, on the extreme eastern flank, close to the Rumanian frontier, is pushing forward from Czernowitz across the Russian frontier into Bessarabia, with the apparent design of taking the Russian forces in Eastern Galicia in the flank and rear.

In Wartime

Now strikes the hour upon the clock.
The black sheep may rebuild the years;
May lift the father's pride he broke,
And wipe away his mother's tears.

To him the mark for thrifty scorn,
God hath another chance to give;
Sets in his heart a flame newborn
By which his muddled soul may live.

This is the day of the prodigal,
The decent people's shame and grief;
When he shall make amends for all,
The way to glory's bloody and brief.

Clean from his baptism of blood,
New from the fire he springs again,
In shining armor, bright and good,
Beyond the wise home keeping men.

Somewhere tonight—no tears be shed!
With sinking hands they turn the sheet
To find his name among the dead—
Flower of the army and the fleet.

They tell with proud and stricken face
Of his white boyhood far away—
Who talked of trouble or disgrace?
"Our splendid son is dead!" they say.

SAYS BALLAST SHIFTING
CAUSED WRECK OF F-4.

Holland Pointed Out Danger, but Wasn't Heeded, Son Says.

John P. Holland, Jr., whose father built, at the old Crescent shipyards in Elizabeth, N. J., the first Holland submarine, says that if the government had heeded his father ten years ago the F-4 disaster in Honolulu harbor probably would have been avoided. Mr. Holland assumes that shifting caused the wreck of the F-4. Plans of construction which would avoid this evil were submitted by Mr. Holland to the government.

"In 1907 my father submitted to the government a plan for a submarine which embodied all his previous experience with the underwater vessel. It was ideal in every way," declared Mr.
Holland. "At that time he took occasion to point out some of the defects in the construction of submarines and to warn the government against a serious catastrophe, such as occurred in the case of the F-4."

"One of the chief defects pointed out by my father at that time was the arrangement of the ballast tanks. Because of the faulty position of the tanks the boats would dive unexpectedly when the center of gravity was suddenly shifted. Should the boat be running partly submerged with the tank partially full, any movement in the boat, such as the raising of the bow or stern on a wave, would cause the water in the ballast tanks, in obedience to the laws of gravity, to shift forward or backward, upsetting the gravity of the boat. As a consequence the boat would be rendered beyond the control of the crew. Should the boat be running submerged, with her ballast tanks full, the same dive would be caused by shifting of the oil in the partially filled fuel tanks. This, beyond doubt, accounted for the sudden dive of the F-4."

"In order to overcome a situation of this kind, my father had on his boat an apparatus designed to expel the water from the ballast tanks in a few moments. Even if the boat were at a very great depth it would rise immediately to the surface. This idea was, however, vetoed by submarine experts of the government."

comfort of believing that it would clean up all comers if driven to it.

THE GREAT MORAL FORCE

Advertising is one of the great moral forces of the day.
It has revolutionized business methods and let daylight into the dark places.

It has banished the doctrine of "Let the buyer beware."
It has made it possible to lower prices by increasing sales.

It has done as much as any single factor to forge America to the front as a commercial nation.

Each advertisement in this newspaper is a constructive message well worth the attention of readers.

The Broad Way
Leads to Goodyear Tires

Try it a little while. It has carried some 400,000 motorists to the haven of content. It is traveled by more users than has any other tire. That has been so for years.

We can't win you to Fortified
Tires by asking you to try them.
The tires themselves must win you.

But our plea is that you should try the tires that countless men found best. There must be a reason as you know, why Goodyears dominate like this. Last year men bought about one Goodyear for every car in use.

In five costly ways, employed by no other maker, they offer unique protection. They combat five troubles—rim-cuts, blowouts, loose treads, punctures and skidding—as is done in no other tire.

Price Reduction
On February 1st we made another big price reduction. That makes three reductions in two years, totaling 45 per cent.

Today Goodyears, more than ever before, offer you most for the money. They offer you the utmost possible in tires, measured by cost per mile. Doesn't their top place prove that?

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS

To be the First to Wear the New Fashions Confers a Social Distinction

IN every community there are women of taste and refinement who are leaders of style, upon whom other women rely for the fixing of fashions. In catering to the requirements of these women who enjoy possessing the new garments at the earliest moment possible, we have planned this advance spring showing of smartly tailored presenting a wonderfully attractive collection of distinctly new garments; correct in style, refined in character, beautifully made of the most fashionable materials of the new season.

Cost No. 1341

Wooltex Coats and Suits

Now is the Best Time to Wear and Enjoy Them

The jackets of the new suits vary in length, some being even all around, some short in front, longer at the sides and still longer in the back. Some are form-fitting, some have straight lines to the waist with the graceful rippling flare below. The military motif is one of the influences of the new season.

Many of the coats are braided and trimmed with buttons in distinctly original effects. In every coat and suit the collar plays a most important part, supplying one of the main features of the style of the garment. The rolling military effect is most widely seen. Practically all of the coats have detachable over-collars of pique or silk.

The picture shows one of the charming new Wooltex coats. While the back is plain, the front shows a partial yoke effect. The rolling collar may be worn open or closed. On some coats in this style, collar is piped with striped cloth. The godet under the arm, below the waist-line, produces a wonderfully smart wing-like flare which seems to spring out on each side of the coat. The coat is 40 inches long and is full-lined with peau de cygne. Price $18.50.

It is a particularly handsome model for large women. There are many other equally attractive models at the same popular price, $18.50.

Other Wooltex coats at $16.50 and $20.

Wooltex suits at $25, $30 and $35.

If you have not yet seen the new collection, we cordially invite you to come and view the garments at your earliest convenience.

The Ideal and The Practical

By EDITH V. ROSS

Wickersham was a literary genius, but an undiscovered genius. There are geniuses whose work any one may recognize as something that appeals to him strongly, but he would not stop to ask why. Even such a gift may be a long while in securing recognition, and the chances seem to be largely in favor of its never attaining it. The public is the final judge in such matters, and the public is often slow in making a decision.

When Wickersham first began to write he was told that he must write something original. This was exactly what he was fitted to do, and he did it. He was disappointed in the result. Those who had advised him to produce original matter forgot to remind him that he must educate a clientele to appreciate the novelty. Meanwhile the literary space in the periodicals and other mediums was occupied by the commonplace.

Then Wickersham was told that what publishers wanted was something on a subject which the people were discussing. It was explained to him that advertisement was essential, and a work on such a subject was largely self advertised. So Wickersham chose a theme that was uppermost in the minds of the public and treated it in an original fashion. Again he was disappointed. He could not find a publisher. Why? "My dear fellow," explained an editor, "you lean to one side of the question. Your work will offend every one on the other side." Another said, "You are constantly firing over the heads of the people."

Wickersham was in despair. All his instructions had come to naught. Then when his failure was complete he had no more sense than to get married. His wife was as pretty as a peach, very practical and had the faculty of making herself liked. When she married Wickersham he had had for months a book on the stands the publication for which he had paid. There was no sale for "The Wanderer," and the copies which were beginning to get soiled were being returned to the publisher.

"I think I will try to do something with that book to get it introduced," said Mrs. Wickersham to her husband. "Have you read it?"

"Read it? No. It wouldn't do any good for me to read it. What is wanted is to sell it."

Mrs. Wickersham had an intimate friend, Mrs. Singleton, who was at the head of the literary department of a women's club. She took the book to this lady, asked her as a favor to read it and recommend it to her friends. Mrs. Singleton happened to be one of culated to appreciate Wickersham's genius. She did more than recommend the book to her friends; she delivered a lecture on it one afternoon in the clubhouse. Anything Mrs. Singleton said about a book was not disputable among the members of the club.

Presently there sprang up a demand for "The Wanderer." This demand occurred in the city where Mrs. Singleton reigned as literary queen. A few of the women who read it appreciated it, but it mattered not to those who failed to do so, for since Mrs. Singleton had put her stamp on it none of the others would dare condemn it, for they would thereby condemn themselves for lack of appreciation. The calls for "The Wanderer" at the stands increased, and presently a new edition was necessary to supply the demand.

One morning Wickersham woke up to find himself famous. Mrs. Wickersham was famous, too, not only for being the wife of a famous man, but because she was the first to discover his genius. Mrs. Singleton being the second person. Mrs. Wickersham bore her honors modestly. She did not take the trouble to read her husband's book, for she would no more understand it after the public had put its stamp of approval on it than before. There was no necessity for her to read it. When persons congratulated her on her husband's success and her own discernment and said nothing. What is there for a person to say when complimented? Anything said is calculated to do harm rather than good. Mrs. Wickersham stood pat. Among the many persons who congratulated her there was not one who knew that she had never read a word of her husband's book.

Mrs. Wickersham got out all her husband's unpublished manuscripts and offered them to publishers. They were snapped up greedily. A taste for Wickersham's work was gradually growing upon the public, and the sale of his books increased proportionately. Meanwhile he wrote a new one and one day informed his wife that he had given it to a publisher for publication.

"At what royalty?" asked the lady. "Royalty? I don't know. I suppose the usual royalty."

"Albert," his wife exclaimed, "you are the stupidest man in America!" Then she visited the publisher in question and returned with a contract to pay her husband double the usual royalty.

Wickersham remained famous for a time. Then his fame began to wane. Some said he had written himself out. Others declared that it had been a mistake to consider him a genius at all. This doesn't matter to his wife, since she is cutting the coupons off the bonds she bought with the money reaped when her husband was a star, and it makes no difference to her now that his star has set.

Carrying It Too Far. An agreeable disposition is a nice thing, but some people are so easy to get along with that it's no fun to get along with them.

METEOR SEEN BY DAYLIGHT.

Shot Across Sky From West to East Near Sundown.

The first meteor New York ever saw by daylight visited the city at exactly 5:30 o'clock on March 30. Though not as brilliant as nocturnal fliers, it was beautiful and startling because of its size, and as the twilight was descending the train of the meteor shone, sparkled, scintillated and glowed in the full pride of its nightness. Its head was easily reminded of what a 42 centimeter shell should look like as it goes flying through the air.

The meteor shot across the sky from west to east as one saw it from the financial district. It was visible for about twenty degrees, and its train remained in sight for a couple of seconds. The head seemed about twenty times the size of Venus. It was chiefly a glowing white with a bluish gray border. The train did not spread out like that of a comet, but graduated to narrower proportions and evanesced into atmospheric nothingness.

It looked to observers as if it were too big to burn out before reaching the earth. It shot through the sky at an angle of about twelve degrees and was about fifteen degrees above the earth when its fascinating brilliancy disappeared.
